Two students teach each other their mother tongues in one-to-one informal online meetings.

1.

Take a look at the UniTandem data sheet (unitandem.fi) to see if there are people who could teach you the language you're interested in learning. If there isn't, sign up anyway – there might be suitable partners for you later on!

2.

Sign up to UniTandem using your university or university of applied sciences email address.

3.

Find a language partner. When you have found a partner, send an email to info@unitandem.fi to get the password for DigiCampus, where the instructions and materials are.

4.

Sign up to DigiCampus using your university or university of applied sciences email address (HAKA), and when prompted, enter the enrolment key you have received from info@unitandem.fi.

5.

Read the instructions and choose the topics or triggers that you find interesting (3 triggers as a learner = 1 credit).

6.

Collect the outputs of each trigger you complete in your portfolio and submit it when you're finished.

7.

Give your partner and yourself feedback at the end.

8.

The university coordinating UniTandem awards the credits.
